J. W. Grant MacEwan M.L.A.

New Leader of the Liberal Party in Alberta

A tall, lanky Westerner striding squarely to the centre of the Alberta political arena on Saturday, November 12, J. W. Grant MacEwan, Member of the Alberta Legislature since 1935, won the leadership of the Liberal Party and with the task of leading the movement of the Liberal Party to form the official Opposition in the Legislature.

A familiar figure to many Albertans, and particularly to Calgaryans, Mr. MacEwan can be seen striding along the streets of the city at 6 a.m., halts and confers, on his way to his office to meet his many newspaper and radio deadlines.

The six foot three former Manitoba symbolizes the freshness and vigor of the Canadian West. With a heritage of several generations of pioneers and farmers in the Western Canada, a son to himself proudly as a "reformer of the soil".

From his father's farm near Brandon, he went to University to study agriculture and later became Dean of Agriculture at the University of Manitoba. In 1931, he fulfilled a long standing ambition to make his home in the foothills of the Rockies. Since that time, he has developed a reputation far beyond the border of the province as a visitor on ranching and farming.

As a Westwood judge, and as a collector and writer of Western Canadian history, his love of the West and his appreciation of life in the West are immediately evident to all who know him. Among his books on prairie life are such well known works as "Between the Rod and the Rock", "The Quarter Horse", and "The Suburban". He has also written several text books on agriculture for University students.

Prior to the Liberal leadership campaign, Grant MacEwan campaigned on the need for a fresh approach to provincial administration, a "new breed" to sweep the cobwebs out of government departments, and a new programme in all provincial fields. As an outstanding agriculturalist, he believes that immediate action must be taken to improve the situation of Alberta farmers.

In his responsible tasks of Leader of the Opposition and alternative to the present Premier of Alberta, the new

Remembrance Day

Church Service Held in Community Hall

In observance of Remembrance Day the annual church service was held in the Community Hall, Delia, on Tuesday forenoon, Nov. 11th, at 10 a.m. The service was well attended by a veterans of both wars, Highlanders, Sea Cadets, Girl Guides and the public generally. The service was conducted by Mr. Grant Williams, and Mr. Lynn Turner, pastors of Delia Inter-Denominational Church, and Delia United Church.

Miss F. Gibson was the pianist.

Proceedings commenced with the hymn "O Canada" followed by prayer, and a Scripture Reading taken from Revelations Chapter XXI, Verse 1-7.

The hymn, "O Valiant Hearts," was sung by the congregation, with Miss Gibson accompanying at the piano.

Com. Wm. Newman read a Scripture reading, followed by prayer by pastor and the 23rd Psalm with responses by congregation.

Mr. Grant Williams, who was the special speaker for the occasion, then gave an impressive address, paying especial tribute to the men and women who had risked and gave their lives in two World Wars.

At the conclusion the hymn, "For All the Saints," was sung by the audience, and Benediction pronounced. The National Anthem followed.

On emerging from the hall the veterans and cadets were marshalled by Com. Newman, and marched to the Cenotaph, where a short service was held, and wreaths placed at the base of the memorial by members of the Legion.

The names of those who died were read aloud; also the Veterans' Creed repeated. The Post was sounded by Mr. G. Caran, followed by two minutes' silence.

Rotating Crop Rotations

Let's put a stop to the old-fashioned "one crop rotation" system.

A proper evaluation of any farming program should be based on a careful analysis of the crop rotation capacity of the total rotation being used. Rotation that is a halfhearted from one aspect may fail to utilize the full productive potential of the soil in other respects. Such an appraisal of rotation is the Let's put a stop to the old-fashioned "one crop rotation" system.

Seven dryland crop rotations, all of which contain wheat as the basic crop, have different grain in their total productivity. The total number of pounds of available nutrients, commonly referred to as T.D.N., serve as a guide to the value of the rotation. Where wheat has been grown continuously since 1851, an annual average of 994 pounds of T.D.N. has been produced per acre of rotation.

Three-year rotation of fall wheat-wheat produced an average of 879 pounds of T.D.N. per acre of rotation, whereas a one-year rotation, where wheat was alternated with fallow, produced only 750 pounds of T.D.N. per acre of rotation. This fact alone would indicate that the cropping period of the fallow period is not as good as a rotation, where wheat was alternated with fallow, produced only 750 pounds of T.D.N. per acre of rotation. New Delegate Elected

In a by-election held in Alberta Wheat Pool sub-district 30, Norman S. Nelson, of Craigmile, was elected to the position of delegate. He defeated Catho D. Viste, of Hanna.

Mr. Nelson, who succeeds the late Jack Schell, of Hanna, will attend the Pool's annual meeting in Calgary beginning later this month.

Trees Still Available

The Alberta Department of Agriculture advises that it still has certain types of trees available for distribution on farmed planting next spring. Orders should be placed with any district agricultural agent or sent direct to Mr. McCall, Field Crop Branch, Legislative Building, Edmonton, Alberta. The department warns, however, that applications for trees will be filled only if and where the trees are to be planted but have been manufactured for at least one year.

For light soil, Lodgepole pine, Scots pine, white spruce, and larch are available and are well adapted to give good results. Television Program On Farm Buildings

Kathleen Engstrom, J. Poth, Saskatchewan, S. Henske, Manitoba, and C. Chadler, Alberta, will discuss major farm buildings for housing beef and dairy cattle, grain and storage crops in Nov. 17 on the C.B.C. "Television Program, 'Farm Facts'." Swift Current, Edmonton, Red Deer, Calgary and Medicine Hat will show the release at 3:30-3:50 p.m. M.S.T. On the following Monday, from 3:30-3:50 p.m., Let's put a stop to the old-fashioned "one crop rotation" system.

The farm building, prepared by the Farm Department of the C.B.C. in co-operation with Extension Directors from Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, is the second in a series of.

PLANNING PRECEDES PLANTING AND BUILDING

Improvements and additions to your homestead can be carefully and leisurely planned during the winter months. It is a good idea to make a seasonal acreage plan of your farm drawn on squared paper. It's the best way of avoiding costly and unnecessary mistakes. P. D. McDells, Supervisor of Horticulture, Alberta Department of Agriculture.

Begin by either measuring or using distances between all permanent structures such as, buildings, fences, wells, driveways, roads, trees and shrubs. Older children can lend a hand here. When you know exactly where something is located, plot it down on paper. Clearly mark the object drawn by writing its name beside it, or use a numbering system with a corresponding key placed in one corner of the plan. Mr. McDells suggests using a scale of 1 inch to equal 50 or 60 feet.

Distances such as north, south, east and west should also be indicated. Keep in mind when preparing this plan, fence or completed plan is a very important one. The single acreage plan shows showing size and shape of structures and distances between them.

Rats Invade Alberta Areas

Farmers and government pest control officers in Eastern Alberta are now taking such this second invasion of rats along the Saskatchewan boundary.

The battle is being waged from the Old Lake district in the North as far south as the Medicine Hat region as the rats begin their annual fall migration.

Best results are obtained by a supervisor of crop protection with the provincial department of agriculture, made an inspection trip of the area recently.

Business is like oil, it won't mix with anything but business.

Farmers' Task Completed

Canadian farmers last year received just over 44 cents of the dollar spent by consumers for farm foods, according to Z. V. "Yukon" Davidson, Deputy Minister of Agriculture economist, in an annual study released by the Department.

The 1937 decrease in farmer's share was less than one per cent from the level of the previous year. The farm share of retail food prices has been declining since 1931, when it was 51 per cent.

Increased Compared

More detailed calculations for 14 selected food products, which represents roughly 70 per cent of the total cost of Canadian farm food, definitely demonstrated that in 1937 retail prices of these products increased 3.7 per cent. Farm prices increased only 1.4 per cent and marketing margin were boosted by 8.2 per cent.

The increase in farm prices in 1937 was the first since 1931 and resulted mainly from higher prices for dairy products and meat animals, particularly hogs.

Trap muskrats this fall, official urges Saskatchewan wildlife officials recommend fall trapping of muskrats in sloughs and other water areas where the animals face difficulty this winter, due to low water levels. The season for trapping muskrats opens November 1, outside northern fur conservation areas.

Harold Read, fur administrator for the natural resources department, wildlife branch said recently many muskrats have been noted in sloughs which did not contain sufficient water for the animals to survive the winter. He recommended that muskrats in these dried-out areas be harvested.

In regions where water supply was adequate, and muskrats present in good numbers, Mr. Read advised trapping of one-third of the total population. This would leave sufficient food for the remaining muskrats and ensure healthy animals, with good quality pelts, in the spring.

He said approximately 60 per cent of Saskatchewan's two and half million dollar annual fur take was trapped south of the northern fur conservation block. Most of this fur population was located on farm land. Many farmers would gladly agree to permit interested persons to trap muskrats on their property.

A special muskrat license for areas outside the northern fur conservation block costs one dollar and can be obtained from regional offices of the department of natural resources, local conservation officers or local conservation vendors.

Lone Scout awards and promotions

Our advisors congratulate the following Lone Scouts on having completed their "Wonderful Year".

Murray Pitzer, Lumsden, Alta; Ian Macdonald, Parkland, Alta; and to Larry Smith, Sherburne, who has now become a Second Class Scout, with every success in First Class work.

Lone Scout George Schmitt, Lethbridge, had the experience of taking four day camp at a lake about 50 miles from home. He and the others with him spent some time, and George says they had a "wonderful time".

Pomer Lone Scout, Lethbridge, was one of the Scouts who took part in the current Creek while the group was in camp during the summer.

Jukes going to Russia

Gordon W. Jukes, newspaper publisher at Merville, will be taking off on a trip to Russia sometime in November. Mr. Jukes, first vice-president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, attended a meeting in Toronto last week and he was selected to accompany the Moscow team to Russia, on their hockey tour. A son of the late Gordon Jukes, publisher of the Watson Post prior to World War I, Gordon was born in Watrous. Local friends will wish for him an enjoyable trip behind the Iron Curtain—the Manitou, Watrous, Sask.

Povungnituk's new way of life

A new way of life is developing for some 60 Eskimos at Povungnituk on the east coast of Hudson Bay. Once leading the nomadic life of hunters and trappers they have now taken up a settled existence as artists and makers of handicrafts and even operate Canada's first and only business in magazine carving.

A spokesman for the Northern houses are covered with peat and insulated by caribou robes, but the ceiling is of aluminum to reflect light and heat and the floor is made of plywood with a vapor barrier of polyethylene. Their houses in the group feature corrugated aluminum and even corrugated aluminum siding.

Each house is heated by a central furnace which sticks in to the Affairs Department said Povungnituk's new way are reflected in a miniature building house. No longer in need of mobile housing, the Eskimos are replacing their unsightly igloos and tents by simple but permanent houses, a number of which have been built by a crew of six at the rate of one a day.

The new ones fit their owners' changed needs at the snow house and skin tent did their former way of living. One-room structures of 12 by 20 feet, the houses combine plain local materials with modern minerals and synthetic. The outer walls of the cheapest ditional Eskimo fashion, the snow store is used for cooking. The house ranges in total cost from $225.35 for the one covered with peat and to $400 for an aluminum house.

Technical Officer Peter E. Macdonald, of the Department's Arctic Division designed the houses and helped the Eskimos build the first; the others were built by the Eskimos without any further supervision or direction. Materials were brought with assistance from the government's Eskimo Loan Fund.

One of the most progressive Eskimo communities in Canada, Povungnituk has a population of slightly more than 60, living in a number of camps. Each camp maintains a "company account," a community fund into which residents regularly pay small sums based on the number of adults and their collective purchases such as food and clothes for the camp.

So loyal to this camp are the Povungnituk Eskimos that several of them, working at a construction project for $100 an hour, left their jobs to help their friends with the house building program at $2-a-day.

Povungnituk's main industry is seal harvesting. The settlement produces sealmeats, seal oil and seal skins for export. It also has a small sealmeat processing plant.

The Society, which specializes in carvings depicting Eskimo legends, claims its work is of superior quality because the group includes all the better carvers of the area.

Seal was discovered by the Gault about 77 A.D.

BEARDS and BUSTLES

By Captain Edward Read
Cullinback, B.C.

If the entire country has not become vividly aware of British Columbia's centenary, it certainly is not the fault of the enterprising committees charged with engineering suitable observances. In our town the women are coming out in historic costumes, while the men are specializing in centennial beards. So interesting is the competition to grow the blackest, thickest or most unusual crop of whiskers that hundreds of otherwise conservative fellows have heeded into the act, and so well has nature co-operated that the effect of these hairy men of the year has been transforming. One is never quite sure how much longer he will be able to recognize his neighbor!

That a sense of history is being cultivated no one can doubt. This is justifiable, particularly when one reflects upon the progress the province has made in its first one hundred years. There are dozens of big, bustling towns today which were just arid, thriving Indian camps a few years ago. British Columbia's standard of living among the colonies' highest.

By order of the Premier, April 27th was a day of prayer. At untold altars in many centres, citizens gathered to give thanks to God for the communal blessings of plenty and prosperity with which this province has been so abundantly endowed throughout the years.

And what of the future? Will Christ be owned and obeyed by rising generations? Will British Columbia's churches ring out kila in a pronouncing righteousness. His tender compassion more clearly than in the past? This, as I see it, is the Lord's essential challenge.

10,000 SPECIES OF WASPS
At least 10,000 species of wasps are known and, unlike the bees, they are primarily predators in habit, feeding their young upon other insects.

Report on penal reform meet

The Dominion should plan for a revised penal system which would be ready to assume responsibility for persons sentenced under federal laws to terms of one year or more. This was agreed by Saskatchewan representatives and those from each of the other provinces attending the recent federal-provincial conference on penal reform at Ottawa.

The mid-October conference was called to discuss aspects of the Canadian correction system suggested by the 1956 Paterson Committee Report. Saskatchewan representatives attending were: from the Department of Social Welfare, Hon. J. J. Bentley, minister; J. R. White, deputy minister; J. R. Mather, director, correction branch; and from the Attorney General's department, Hon. R. A. Walker, Q.C., attorney general, and R. B. McLeod, Q.C., deputy attorney general.

Mr. Bentley pointed out that the entire conference dealt with persons sentenced under federal law. Plans are to be formulated on the basis that the federal government will have decided that sentences under federal law of more than six months but less than two years should be eliminated. "This" Mr. Bentley said, "would mean that persons sentenced for any period under municipal or provincial law, and persons sentenced under federal law for six months or less, would continue to be a provincial responsibility. It was understood, however, that upon request of the province the federal government would enter into negotiations as to terms on which persons sentenced to more than six months under provincial law might be held in Dominion institutions."

"It was further agreed," the Minister said, "that when planning has advanced Dominion and provincial representatives will meet. They will consider how effect is to be given to arrangements contemplated in the agreement that the Dominion should proceed to plan for a revised penal system. The conference approved establishment of a federal government committee to develop plans for the orderly implementation of recommendations."

In this connection Mr. Bentley stated that the federal government had indicated they would maintain at least the same level of program as that given by the provinces. The aspect of proposals that plans can be negotiated as the program is at a standard as high as that prevailing in the province is of particular moment to Saskatchewan since our advanced program has aroused considerable interest and favorable comment."

In discussing adequate standards of care at the conference, Mr. Bentley said he had made a proposal that if adequate standards of correctional work could be established then federal grants-in-aid might be made to institutions which could and would meet these standards. "The answer, I think worthy of consideration," he said.

(The Star, Regina, Man.)

It is that the federal government might inaugurate a program of financial assistance to the provinces on a cost-sharing or grants-in-aid basis which would have ten-fold effect.

(2) To require the provinces to maintain certain standards of construction.

(3) To assist the provinces to develop and maintain adequate treatment programs. Among other items dealt with at the conference, the federal government agreed to consider a change in the sharing arrangements whereby prisoners held within three months of admission to a federal institution to have been mentally ill on admission, become a provincial responsibility. Some preliminary consideration was given to the special problems of drug addicts.

It was agreed that no person under 18 should be sentenced to imprisonment in an institution where adults are confined, except where the offence is murder, manslaughter or rape. When in the opinion of the superintendent of an institution for juveniles a person is suitable for treatment in that institution, the Attorney General, or other appropriate minister, may, by warrant, authorize the transfer of that person to an appropriate penal institution.

It was agreed that regulations in the custody of female prisoners should be the same as for male prisoners subject to special consideration of French-speaking female prisoners. It was further understood that the government of Canada would give consideration to establishment of one or more women.

Provincial officials will make a survey of their individual needs for correctional workers, available resources for their training and facilities for correctional reform. The Dominion, to make a similar survey of their present and future needs to this date, compile information received from the provincial officials and prepare draft recommendations for discussion with the provincial officials.

The value of the work of the after-care agencies was recognized and consideration given to increased financial assistance. Officials are to study this further with a view to making specific recommendations.

It was agreed that arrangements should be worked out to encourage regular visits by judges and magistrates to these penal institutions in which they would be sentencing prisoners.

In conclusion Mr. Bentley said, "we, from Saskatchewan, who attended the conference felt a confident hope as did those from other provinces that the foundation has been laid for major reforms in Canada's correctional system. It was recognized however, that because of the extensive preliminary planning required it will be some time before concrete results are apparent across the country. Everyone who attended is anxious to get on with the program as soon as possible."

Search for Sunken Treasure

The search for seaweed off the rocky shores of Canada's maritime provinces is developing into an unusual and profitable industry. At Moncton, P.E.I., a young girl removes impurities from a handful of carrageen (Irish Moss), one of the important and versatile red seaweeds.

Irish Moss is laid out on flakes to dry at Sturgeon, P.E.I. It has a wide variety of commercial uses as a stabilizing agent in ice cream and chocolate milk and in many retail articles and pharmaceuticals.

National Film Board of Canada Photos

Maritimers rely on 25 million pounds of carrageen annually. In recent years surveys have been undertaken to determine the seaweed resources of the world's maritime countries. It has been estimated about one million tons exist off southwest Nova Scotia. Canada exports a large part of her produce to the United States where research is continually turning up new and exciting industrial possibilities for the seaweed.

THE FIRST SNOW—Howling out of the northeast, the first snow storm of the winter season piled snow to a depth of 11 inches on the level and drifted to three and four feet in some places. The result was blocked roads and disrupted traffic. The above picture shows a residential street in Montreal, with trees weighed down with the wet snow.

NOVEMBER, 1918

It is 40 years this month since "the monstrous anger of the guns" was stilled in Flanders fields and four years of indescribable carnage finally ended. Forty years since the world welcomed the coming of the 11th day of the 11th month with a relief bordering on hysteria.

With the passing of each decade, the number of those to whom "the war," because of bereavement or incapacity, will mean 1914-1918 is diminished. To the present generation this is merely one of history's many great wars. The future, the Marine, the Airne, these are but rivers in Northern France.

But there are others yet who remember when, like Vimy Ridge (where Canadians gave so much), Ypres, Hill 60, Passchendaele, New Chapelle and Verdun, they signified slaughter and courage and endurance on a scale unequalled before or since.

Inevitably, the events of 1914-1918 are overshadowed today by those of the second world-wide conflict which followed only 20 years later.

And, of course, in some respects, this latter war eclipsed the earlier one in the totality of the destruction it visited upon mankind.

But, let it not be forgotten, for Canada, as for some of the other combatants in both wars, the toll of native sons killed and maimed was even greater in the first than in the second.

Forty years have come and gone, but the forests of crosses in the fields of Northern France remain.

WAGE COSTS

Effect of increased wage costs upon prices was dramatically illustrated last week by a Canadian Press advertisement that the Alberta Steel Company's steel has risen the price of its steel by $4.10.

Two weeks ago Alberta granted its hourly-wage employees a wage increase totaling 24c over the next three years. Only 7c of the new wage rate applies to this year. It may probably be expected that Alberta will raise its steel prices again when the other 17c becomes effective.

Local & District

Emil Nagy and Ray Schoppe were visitors in Delia last week end.

Gary Cousins, of Calgary, was a visitor in the Delia District last week end.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Stubbs, of Coronation, were visitors in the Delia District for the Remembrance Day holiday.

Miss Catherine Battle, of Calgary, was a visitor with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. Battle, last week end.

The wedding of Miss Barbara McFarland and Mr. Frank Arthur David, was solemnized in the Knox United Church, Drumheller, on Friday, November 7th.

Miss Darlene Williams and Miss Audrey See, from Calgary, spent the week end with their respective parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. Williams and Mr. and Mrs. M. See, in Delia.

Following the fine weather we have been experiencing, the first liberal snow of the season fell overnight Sunday, Nov. 13.

Just as the weather was about to let us know winter is on the way, which does not officially begin until Dec. 22, according to Delia's almanac.

Temperatures are in the 40's, with bright sunshine at this writing, Tuesday noon.

Just before going to press last Wednesday, light snow was falling.

IRRADIATION IN CROP IMPROVEMENT

One of the several uses to which Atomic Science may now be put, in Agriculture, is the production of mutations, or changes in the structure of plant or seed.

These are induced by the exposure of plants or seeds to irradiation. Some of these artificially produced changes may prove highly desirable from a crop improvement standpoint. At first, therefore, and having in mind the record with which experiments of this kind can be carried out on a large scale—it might appear that this method provides a quick and ready means of finding solution with respect to disease resistance and other desirable qualities sought by the plant breeder.

It has been even suggested of publicists but without any basis in fact, that this procedure might do away with the necessity for following normal plant breeding methods.

The statement brought a quick warning from a prominent plant scientist working at The First International Wheat Genetics Symposium, held in Winnipeg recently, that useful as irradiation may "prove to be in plant improvement, it would be a mistake to rely upon this procedure alone and that well accepted procedures now being followed by geneticists and plant breeders throughout the world, seemed to offer the best hope of success in other crops.

Registered Seed

The Canada Department of Agriculture has obligated that total amount of the registered seed and grain harvested in the prairie provinces this fall was approximately 214 million bushels.

This consisted of wheat—13.5 million bushels, barley—1.8 million bushels, rye—6.0 million bushels, flax—1.3 million bushels.

The government has also agreed that grain exchangers for seed this year will be exempt from collection of advances.
